

We Expect the School Children Tomorrow

We have set aside especially for the school children each Saturday during the month of April. School children, from the first grade to the boys and girls in high school, make most interesting pictures, not only for the time being, but for future years. We expect a large portion of the El Paso school children tomorrow and the balance on the remaining Saturdays of April.

CHINAMEN ARE CAUGHT IN CAR

D. C. Cannon Is Held by Police on Charge of Carrying Pistol.

D. C. Cannon is confined in the city jail on a charge of carrying a pistol on which charge he was docketed at 2 o'clock this morning when arrested in the G. H. railroad yards by policeman Ivy Finley, who had been summoned from the police station by a brakeman, on the train, who telephoned that the man had drawn a gun on him.

The brakeman said he found the man loitering near one of the refrigerator cars and after the arrival of the police officer he investigated with the result that he found eight Chinamen in the car. They were taken to the police station where all were docketed as suspicious characters, one of them giving the name of Bing Kee and the others being docketed under the name of John Doe number one to seven consecutively. This morning the Chinamen were delivered to the immigration officers and taken to the detention station, preparatory to a hearing before United States Commissioner Oliver, it being believed that they may have been smuggled into the country.

These were the last arrests made during the month of March and the total number of prisoners docketed during the month was 658.

FIREMEN RESPOND TO "APRIL FOOL" ALARM

"No ketchem fire, no ketchem troubles." Thus spoke a Chinaman who placidly continued ironing clothes in his laundry at 564 South El Paso street at 11 o'clock Thursday night when the firemen from the Central station arrived. They found another Chinaman upstairs busily engaged in extinguishing some linen which had caught fire, but no damage was done.

About 1:30 o'clock this morning, an April fool alarm was turned in by telephone from Broadway near Second street.

FAILS TO CALL DOCTOR; BOY DIES FROM MEASLES

Justice E. B. McClintock was called to the home of Mrs. Jose Angel Ortiz at the corner of Tenth street and Hidalgo avenue, Thursday afternoon to hold an inquest. He found seven-month-old Jose Ortiz dead. The boy had died of measles and all because the mother, a poor ignorant woman, did not think the boy was sick and therefore failed to send for a doctor.

For Lame Back

Weak Kidneys, Backache, Rheumatism or Lumbago it is absolutely essential, in order to obtain satisfactory results, that you take a reliable preparation that acts directly on the Kidneys. Many persons trust to luck for a cure. No remedy will be found more satisfactory than

Pineules

Nature always gives due warning and failure to heed same may result in Diabetes, Lumbago, Bright's Disease, or some other serious affection of the Kidneys. GOVERNOR MILLS IS GUEST OF LAS CRUCES of the governor was the arrival of the train from the south with the delegation from El Paso on board. This train was also met by the reception committee, the crack company of N. M. N. G., the battalion and band from the college and the escort of horsemen. At the National Guard armory a general reception was held following the arrival of the governor's party and the El Paso delegation. The main assembly hall of the armory was the scene of this reception and the residents of the Mesilla valley were introduced to Gov. Mills and his official family and to the El Paso visitors.

El Pasoans' Present.
The El Pasoans who arrived on this morning's train to participate in the celebration of governor's day are: A. S. J. Eysler, county judge; aldermen W. R. Robinson, W. R. Brown, C. S. Wright, D. M. Payne, W. L. Reed, district engineer of the reclamation service; postmaster J. A. Smith, J. G. McNary, B. L. Berkeley, C. A. Kinne, secretary of the chamber of commerce; Camillo Padilla, editor Revista Illustrada, N. M. Walker of The Herald, C. E. Walker, Sam Reynolds and F. G. Morris.

Honors to Governor.
When governor Mills arrived with members of his staff, he was accorded an ovation, 22 mounted native horsemen from Dona Ana and Old Mesilla and 20 men from the Boer colony, playing an important part in this. The Dona Ana horsemen were in command of Frank Barncastle and the Old Mesilla horsemen were commanded by A. J. Fountain, the entire troop being commanded by sheriff Felipe Lucero. The national colors carried at the head of the troop was a flag secured from old Ft. Fillmore. Gen. B. J. Vinyon and Capt. N. Von Gass commanded the Boers.

The El Paso delegation was met upon its arrival by the Las Cruces reception committee and also by the native horsemen. The El Pasoans were escorted to Hotel Don Bernardo, where they met governor Mills, before going to the national guard armory for the general informal reception.

In proceeding from the hotel to the armory, governor Mills rode in the W. W. Cox automobile and was escorted by Martin Lohman, N. Gales and Maj. W. H. H. Llewellyn. Following in line and in automobiles were members of the Las Cruces reception committee and the El Pasoans.

At the Breakfast.
At the breakfast at the hotel in honor of governor Mills were Dr. Robert Smart, surgeon general of the New Mexico national guard, of Albuquerque; W. A. Fleming Jones, also a member of the governor's staff; Col. Eugene Van Patten, Maj. W. H. H. Llewellyn, Oscar Snow, Martin Lohman, Jose Gonzales, R. H. Sims, N. Gales, A. R. Coleman.

College Visited.
The governor and staff then made an official visit to the A. and M. college, where luncheon was served to the guests. Dr. R. E. McBride, representing the board of regents, delivered the address at this luncheon and a review of the college battalion was held on the parade ground before the party returned to Las Cruces. The battalion, headed by the cadet band, was commanded by Maj. George.

At 2:30 this afternoon the only public meeting of governor's day was held at the armory. Attorney R. L. Young gave the opening address of welcome, which was responded to by governor Mills. Representatives of the El Paso chamber of commerce, and Dr. W. E. Garrison, president of the A. and M. college, and H. R. Holt also addressed the meeting. The El Pasoans who spoke were Rev. C. S. Wright, and Judge A. S. J. Eysler.

Entertainment This Evening.
Judge Francis W. Parker, associate justice of the supreme court will entertain the governor at dinner this evening at his country home and W. A. Fleming Jones will entertain the governor's staff.

MERCHANTS TO TAKE UP INSURANCE DISCUSSION

Sundays they take in as high as $500 at a table. All of this is El Paso money and it hurts El Paso.

"The races hurt El Paso, too. A fake diamond concern opened here during the races and it disposed of over $100,000 in fake diamonds. Many business men came to me with their diamonds to ask what I thought of them and when I said they were not genuine, in many instances they went on and bought them; they know better now."

"I know how that gambling in all its forms hurts El Paso. That money that goes to Reno in Juarez is the cause of bad collections and rapidly increasing debts in El Paso. It ought to be stamped out."

Talks were also made by Julius Krakauer, C. A. Kinne, Harry Swain, Robert Moore, A. Silberberg and others present, favoring the organization of a Retail Merchants' association for the refunding of railroad fare on purchases of things in the interest of the business men of the city.

Rev. Kenneth Brown, representing the women who are urging Saturday closing spoke on the subject.

"Patronize Home Industry."
Julius Krakauer made a plea for the patronage of home industries. He said that he had requested his wife to buy nothing but El Paso made goods where she could get them. "We use only Globe flour, President coffee and everything else of this kind made in El Paso when we can get it," he said. "I know that our insistence on having Globe flour resulted in making one merchant handle it. Every El Pasoan should do this; we ought to buy the goods made at home."

Secretary C. A. Kinne of the chamber of commerce, urged similar action and said he traded only with members of the chamber of commerce, men who were contributing their funds to the organization that is helping to advertise El Paso to the world.

Committee Appointed.
A Schwartz today gave out the list of those appointed as a committee on ways and means in effecting a permanent organization of the merchants. He also Appendicitis How to Avoid It and Escape a Surgical Operation, Told by One Who Knows.

A Simple Method That Is Always Effective—Trial Package Free.

It has only been a few years since it was discovered that a surgical operation would cure appendicitis; in fact, it has been but a short time since the disease was discovered and named.

Whenever there is an inflamed condition of the appendix, caused by impacted feces in the small cavity opening into the intestine, you then have appendicitis.

The older doctors used to call this inflammation of the bowels, and were puzzled to know the cause.

Even now, with all the knowledge we have of the disease, no medical man can tell you why we should have an appendix, why we find it where it is, or what are its functions, if it has any.

The disease for which the operation is a cure is usually caused by indigestion, and in many cases follows a large and indigestible meal.

Physicians have until recently recommended an operation, but now, as it is known that it is caused by indigestion, dyspepsia, a cure without an operation is assured.

Where the patient is treated with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, the unhealthy conditions prevailing rapidly disappear, the stomach and intestines are placed back in their normal condition, every organ of the body operates as it should, and the inflammation is reduced and the operation is avoided.

Conscientious physicians, who are looking after the best interests of their patients, will always keep a supply of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets handy in their office, where in cases of sudden attacks of indigestion they can relieve the patient at once.

No better advice can be given to any one who has attacks of indigestion, or who has been threatened with appendicitis, than to tell him to go to the drug store, pay 50 cents, and take home a package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Whenever heartburn, gas in stomach or bowels, heart disease or stomach troubles, sour eructations, acidity or fermentation are present, act at once. Take a dose of the Tablets and get relief as soon as possible.

At all drug stores—50 cents.
Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

testified he did not send, retorted Brennan.

Attorney Vertrees read Glavin's testimony in which Glavin said he did not send the letter because he heard commissioner Bennett, of the land office, was coming to Seattle and he could talk it over with him.

Chairman Nelson turned to Brandels and said: "You knew that; why did you conceal that fact? Why didn't you tell the committee?"

A SHARP PASSAGE.
"Mr. Chalmers," shouted the attorney in a voice heard far down the corridors, "I object strenuously to the statement that I have attempted to conceal anything. My course has been such before this committee that such a statement is absolutely improper and ought to be withdrawn."

Representative Graham (Democrat): "I move that the chairman be directed to withdraw that remark."

Representative James (Democrat): "I second the motion."

Chairman Nelson: "I won't withdraw it."

Representative Madison acted as peacemaker. He said he thought the chairman's remark was made hastily and it should be understood that the chairman spoke as an individual and did not represent the opinion of the committee. After further sharp squabbling, the matter was tabled by a party vote.

No doubt you have realized the fact that you are not getting the kind of meat you desire, and moreover deserve. You, no doubt, have paid all kinds of prices for meat to find that it was of no better quality than you could get at any market. Perhaps you were at a loss to know why your meats were not as good as those you enjoyed at some friend's or neighbor's table.

WE DO NOT SELL ALL THE MEAT THAT IS SOLD IN EL PASO, BUT WE DO SELL ALL THE BEST MEAT SOLD IN THE CITY.

THE CHORUS LADY

Novelized From Forbes' Play of the Same Name by John W. Harding

The old woman reddened with shame and confusion.

Crawford's worst suspicions of Nora were confirmed beyond question by this remark of the Simpson woman.

"I'm very sorry, Mrs. O'Brien," he said, reddening also, but with annoyance. "I meant no harm, and it's a pretty tough thing when a gentleman can't even be polite to a girl without such things being said."

"It is, indeed," she agreed. "And it's relieved Ol am to find she isn't here. She an' Patsy's off somewhere together most likely."

"Quite probably," he agreed. "I think you said they didn't expect you?"

"Yes. We wanted to surprise them. Danny sent in word at the theater, but Ol misheard they got it. Ol'll just be goin' along. Thank ye, Mister Crawford, for yer kindness."

He shook hands with her and was escorting her out when the valet appeared and announced that Mallory was at the door. Even as he spoke the trainer brushed past Rogers and entered the room. There was wrath in his eyes and an ugly expression of determination on his face.

"I followed you, mother," he explained, addressing Mrs. O'Brien in loud tones. "O'Brien told me you'd come here to fetch Nora."

"She's not here, Danny, pronounced the Lord," the old woman answered.

"I'm not so sure of that," said Mallory.

"Phwat d'ye mean, Danny?" she asked.

"Yes. I'd like to know what you mean by such an intimation," said Crawford, with rising anger. He did not like his partner's attitude at all.

"Miss Simpson was very positive that Nora had come to see you, and she said things about your carryin' on with her that, if I thought was true I'd—"

"You'd what? Miss Simpson had no right to make any such assertions, and if she was positive that the girl had come here, I'm just as positive that she has not."

"What woman?" he asked.

"The woman you hid when I was announced—the woman who, thinkin' I was gone, came out of that room while you were at the telephone—the woman who slunk back again when she saw I was still here. I saw her hand closin' the door."

"Are yez deavin' me, Mister Crawford?" demanded Mrs. O'Brien pitifully. "For the love av God don't tell me Nora's there!"

"I have already told you, Mrs. O'Brien, that I know nothing about your daughter—that Nora's not here. Mr. Mallory's talking nonsense," Crawford assured her. "Besides, if I did have a lady in there, it's none of his business."

"Sure, Danny, Mister Crawford's given you his word," she said, once more relieved. "Come away, bhoys."

Mallory, however, was a man who when once aroused could not be easily appeased and hesitated at nothing. What the Simpson woman had told him had stirred him to fierce anger, and he was determined to get at the truth regardless of consequences. He argued that if such things were said there must be some cause. There was no smoke without fire.

"I'll come away when I've had a look through that other room," he said doggedly.

"You'll not look through that room or any other," replied Crawford, ugly in turn. "And you'll oblige me by getting out of this house altogether, and at once."

"Yes, come away, Danny," pleaded Mrs. O'Brien.

"You can't fool me. I know what I see, and I'm goin' to find out if the owner of that hand's Nora if she's still there," insisted Mallory.

He walked toward the door, but Crawford intercepted him. The struggle that ensued was a brief one, briefer than the time required to recount it. Mallory flung Crawford aside and pulled open the door. Patsy had been listening with bated breath, her hand grasping the handle. His brusque, violent action jerked her into the room as the door flew outward.

Unable to credit his senses, the trainer staggered from her, white as a sheet.

Patsy hurried the door back before any one could look into the room and stood in front of it, facing him.

For a moment no one spoke, Mallory and Mrs. O'Brien trying to comprehend it. Mallory was the first to speak. "There's the owner of the hand," he said brokenly, "and when I seen it the arm was bare!"

Mrs. O'Brien sank into a chair. "You that Ol thought was as good as gold!" she moaned.

"I'm not what you both think," said Patsy quietly.

"Not what we think!" retorted Mallory, becoming stern. "Then what brings you here in the night to this man's room? Answer me. What brings you here?"

She returned his gaze calmly. (To Be Continued.)
